Letter from the President

Fellow Members,

As both the year and the century come to an end, it seems appropriate to reflect on the accomplishments of our organization. I sincerely hope that each of you have benefited from your membership in the Corporate Volunteerism Council (CVC). Our executive committee has worked hard to develop and conduct programs and activities that will help you with your volunteer program.

It was a great pleasure to serve as your president this past year and to see firsthand the enthusiastic participation of our committee members working on your behalf. Our programs were well attended and the after-hour socials provided a nice opportunity to network and learn more about our members and their volunteer programs.

In November, our executive committee conducted a half-day planning retreat to discuss our goals for the year 2000, which is also CVC's 20th anniversary! As the organization moves forward into the new millennium, your new president will be Carolyn Blesi of Weisman Enterprises. I am confident that under her direction, CVC will continue providing valuable services to our members and our community.

Finally, I'd like to thank you for your involvement with the CVC and for the wonderful things you do to encourage workplace volunteerism. Our community benefits greatly from your work. I look forward to your continued interest and support of our common mission to strengthen member volunteer programs.

Sincerely,

Joseph G. Boston
1999 CVC President
Executive Director,
North Memorial Community Foundation

Goals for 2000

Because CVC is a membership organization, we will concentrate on enhancing member benefits during 2000. Our efforts will be focused on understanding each member's specific needs and determining how we can best address those needs.

To accomplish our goals, CVC will implement the following initiatives:

Introduction of CVC program manager - This person will be dedicated to providing support to members, planning and developing high-quality education and professional development services, and assessing and responding to the changing needs of members.

One-on-one consultations - The CVC program manager and an experienced corporate member will consult with members on subjects such as defining the goals of your company's volunteer program and obtaining management support.

Recognition - CVC members will be recognized for hosting or participating in CVC panel discussions and outstanding volunteer activities.

Quality programs and events - Experts will share their knowledge on a wide variety of "hot" corporate volunteerism topics at CVC programs and events scheduled throughout the year.

Member survey - You will have the opportunity to let us know what you need most from the CVC by responding to a survey. Survey results will help ensure that activities and resources are planned in response to member needs.

Recruitment committee - This committee will focus on nurturing current members and recruiting new members.

Celebration - As a group, CVC members will take time to reflect upon our history by celebrating CVC's 20th anniversary at activities scheduled throughout the year.

2000 promises to be an exciting year for corporate volunteerism and CVC. We look forward to providing members with great programs, resources, and fun.
